LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

May 18, 1960

Mr. Editor:

This writer has just returned home after attending a most heartening meeting of canoe livery operators, guides association members, the sportsmen club members, and other interested parties, at which wholehearted co-operation was pledged by all attending, after lengthy discussions, for the improvement of the AuSable situation. This meeting was set up on very short notice, and none of us had the time to do more than to turn out and co-operate for this project was extremely good. The use of the sportsmen club building, and the hospitality of this club was greatly enjoyed by all.

The purpose of this meeting was to discuss different approaches to a fair and equitable course of action to be undertaken, and full co-operation was the ultimate goal and this has now been achieved.

Different aspects were discussed, such as the littering, vandalism, property destruction and law enforcement problems, as well as the campground inadequacy and measures were proposed for attempting to overcome these conditions.

Also, the Grayling sewer was discussed at great length, and opinions and suggestions were made for rectifying the abhorrent sight which greets the river traveler.

The main meeting for the inauguration of a "citizen" and other persons needed to further the project, also specific persons to follow through on proposals as will be agreed upon at the time, has been set for Wednesday, June 1st at 8 p. m.

It is hoped that representatives of the State branches, as well as George Griffith, and Harold Stark who were present tonight, will attend with everyone else to speak for Consumers Power Co.

The Agenda will include the following:

1. Littering — (Specific persons to follow through on this problem.)

2. Campsites — (Specific persons to follow through on this problem.)

3. Signs — (Specific persons to follow through on this problem.)

4. Law Enforcement — (Specific persons to follow through on this problem.)

5. Maps — (Specific persons to follow through on this problem.)

6. Publicity — (Specific persons to follow through on this problem.)

To further keep this project moving, I believe it unnecessary to have anyone air their personal experiences beyond what already has been aired, as everyone is aware that everyone else has the same problems, and such discussions would only hamper the meetings and its purpose.

Therefore, I intend to explain very briefly what has taken place tonight for the benefit of those present on June 1st, who were not in attendance tonight, and then adhere strictly to the planned agenda. I believe this would expedite the meeting greatly.

With the canoe livery co-operating almost 100%, this cannot be said.

This June 1st meeting will be well publicized by myself, the sportsmen club, and the guides association, and will be held at the sportsmen club again. The sportsmen club is providing chairs for seating over 100 persons.

This project is going to produce results, and we want you attending.

Everyone knows the problems, and everyone wants to do something about them, so attend the meeting, air your suggestions and take part in this worthwhile project.

WE WANT YOU there!

Attached, please find a copy of my article from Field and Stream, which appears in the current issue, 1960, on page 8.

The Article is as follows:

June is national recreation month. Sponsored by the National Recreation Association, a non-profit organization, founded in 1906 and supported by voluntary contributions, its theme is "find new worlds through recreation".

A good theme — but a challenging one!

There was a time, and it wasn't so long ago, when there seemed to be room for folks to enjoy their own brand of sport, recreation, or just plain relaxing without getting into each other's hair.

The boatman, who wanted to go boating didn't have to worry about fishermen cramping his style — and vice-versa.

There was enough wilderness canoe water available for the voyageur types to run to their hearts' content. Hunting with bow and arrow was a stunt engaged in by a very few individualists and viewed with condescension by the rifle hunter. Spear fishing was for the south sea islanders, and the aquaplane had yet to be divided into a pair of water skis.

It's quite a different story today, however, the following will give you some of the more clamorous conflicts of interest.

On Michigan's famous AuSable river, the downriver canoe trippers are so thick that trout fishermen who once rated this stream one of the finest in the country are now hard put to cast a fly without being run down by nept paddlers.

In many states where bow hunters now have a special season in advance of the regular open season, rifle hunters complain that the game is spooked before they get a chance to go afield.

In states where fish commissions attempt to set up stretches of trout water for fly fishing only, the bait fishers complain of special privileges.

On every lake or pond big enough to float a boat, fishermen are shaking their fists at hotrod outboarders and water skiers.

The solution to all this is not simple. It never is when you get two people on opposite sides of the fence into an argument.

But there are some rays of sunshine, and they point the way to the ultimate answer — co-operation.

That lusty young organization, Trout Unlimited, whose credo is wild trout and put em back alive, and which is basically an organization of fly fishermen, can't help but serve the cause of the bait fishermen as well.

You hear a lot these days about multiple use of our natural resources, which is generally believed to mean multiple use by industry, agriculture, livestock, and conservation and wildlife interests. We contend that the sportsmen of this country should get smart and co-operate on the multiple use of those waters and woodlands already at their disposal, so that they can present a united front in their protection and in the acquisition of more areas and better access to existing ones.

Unless the bow hunter and rifle hunter can work out their problems, and the canoeists and the fly caster come to an equitable understanding, we can't see the sense in spending all that money to send the abroad to attempt to negotiate a fair and equitable understanding with the commies.

In Yellowstone Park, the national park service is studying a plan to set aside about 21 percent, or some thirty square miles, of Yellowstone Lake for an area limited to the use of hand propelled water craft only.

After all the pro's and con's are considered, the answer still boils down to full co-operation.

BEARNIE SAJDAK
WED IN DETROIT

The honeymoon destination, by plane, heavily married Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Phillip Sajdak was Ochotris, Jamaica.

The former Dorothy Mary Elmhick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Elmhick of 4800 St. Lawrence, Detroit, and her groom, spoke their vows in a recent 10 a.m. double-ring ceremony in Our Lady Queen of Angels church with Rev. Father Bernard Michalak performing the rites before the lily-banked altar.

A floor-length gown of imported Alencon lace and bouquet taffeta was worn by the bride. Her gown featured a round neckline, three-quarter length lace sleeves set into the lace bodice, and chapel train. Her chapel-length veil was caught by a Swedish crown of crystal and carried camel. Mrs. Sajdak also wore a white silk organza over her maid, Christine Stach, cousin of the groom, and bridesmaids Constanta Stach, also the groom's cousin, and Hazel Rigby, Margie Wuerth and Nell Elmhick, cousin of the bride. Their street-length gowns were fashioned with cap sleeves, round necklines and embroidered, embroidered, embroidered. All wore matching red veils and opera pumps. Their flowers were "better times" red roses.

The groom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sajdak of the Ausable Hotel, Frederic, asked his bride's brother, Richard Finch, to be his best man, and his brothers, Richard and John Sajdak, Jim Cipkowski and John Padyas to perform ushering duties.

Before departing for the British West Indies, the newlyweds greeted their guests at the VFW Hall at Chase and West Warren Avenues.

Wonder of wonders. There sure was excitement in Mrs. Ruth Caid's third grade room at the Grayling Public School last week. A group of eggs which the children were keeping in an incubator began to hatch. Although the chicks are not noticeable in the photo, you can see that a number of the children are cupping the bills of fluff in their hands.

Feldhauser School Marks Michigan Week

Michigan Week was observed in conjunction with 4-H Achievement Day at the Feldhauser School Down River.

The Michigan Week program began with 4-H members giving the flag salute. This was followed by an exercise named by Arthur Wakley, on Michigan Settlement and Opportunities. Following is a list of each one's part in the program:

"The Shining Big Sea Water," by Karen Kellogg; "Indian Children," by Janet Elaine Stephan; "Coming of White Men," by Daniel Donley; "Michigan Under British Control," by George Stephan; "Michigan Becomes American," by Robert Shaw; "Settlement of Michigan," by Edna Durga; "Lumbering," by Joe Wakley; "Ol' Paul," by David Pettijohn; "Agriculture of Our State," by David Donley; "Manufacturing," by Arthur Wakley; "Fish," by Janet Carol Stephan; "Mining," by Janet Elaine Stephan; "Education," by Robert Shaw; "Let's Brag," by Janet Carol Stephan; "Conservation," by David Pettijohn; "Display and Explanation," by George Stephan; "Michigan bird, tree, flower, animal," by Benny Joe Pettijohn.

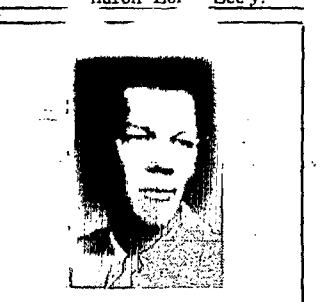

No mother hen was ever prouder of herself than Mrs. Caid's third graders are of their brood of soft fluffy chicks. Wednesday and Thursday (May 18-19) saw a steady stream of elementary students as well as high school students and teachers who came to watch the miracle of birth.

The living science experiment started 3 weeks or 21 days ago when the children brought in eggs and the class borrowed an incubator. The eggs were marked and turned every day. Wednesday morning the excitement began when the first wee wet chick emerged from his shell. From then until Friday morning the children were able to observe all stages of the first small crack and the consequent movement of the egg until about eight hours later when the newborn dried to a soft fluffy, cuddly chick. The brooder.

ade by the janitors from a large all and cardboard box, became favorite gathering place for bird graders who had learned from first-hand experience the ways of mother nature.

Hot Furnaces And Cold Facts

By Paul L. Adams
State Attorney General

If a consumer has any worries about his furnace, now is the time to have it checked by an established, reputable heating concern. As the weather cools, a swarm of door-to-door furnace repair and cleaning solicitors will be blanketing the state. A cold greeting for these salesmen may mean a warmer, more economical year for the consumer and his family.

My investigation indicates that a common tactic used is as follows: The innocent consumer is first sold a furnace cleaning job complete with mothproofing of the ducts. Then when the company representative drops in later under the guise of inspecting the job, he expresses surprise at the state of the furnace and determines that it needs repairs.

Before the consumer can catch his breath, the furnace has been taken apart and the so-called expert says that a new heating unit is needed. This generally occurs in cold weather.

If the consumer balks at signing the contract for the purchase of a new furnace, the self-styled repairman starts to walk out with the parts still on the floor and the house getting colder by the minute. Other cases investigated indicate that once a salesman can gain access to examine the furnace under any guise, the customer is in trouble although he may not realize it.

Almost invariably in the cases involved, after examining the furnace, the so-called repairman has stated that the furnace is in a dangerous condition. The following pitches have been used: The furnace is about to blow up. A house fire is imminent. The family is in immediate danger of asphyxiation from gas. The owner is sitting on a load of dynamite.

So don't be pressured or frightened into a rash act. If in doubt, compare estimates of competitors and have an established repairman check the furnace. If you have other questions consult the appropriate local governmental agency.

City will play behind the bat until Bibbins arrives. Mr. Philip Elijah Quigley and Miss Lucy Adeline Ensign were united in marriage on Monday, May 25th, by the Rev. V. J. Hurston at the M. E. parsonage. Last evening occurred the wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. James Carriere, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Chalefoux, at Frederic, at six o'clock. A number of young folks enjoyed a marshmallow roast out at Leece's grove on Monday evening of this week. It was given in honor of the Misses Frieda Olson and Signa Ellerson of Detroit, who spent several days here visiting relatives and friends. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Eno Milnes on Saturday, May 23rd, a fine little son. Instead of the usual reception given the seniors by the juniors each year, this year by way of entertainment a dancing party was given out at the Military Reservation, Friday evening. The party met at the home of Miss Margaret Joseph and in wagons proceeded to the reservation. Clark's orchestra furnished the music.

Servant Of The People!

Now, after Michigan Week with its emphasis on all of the things for which this great state of ours is famous, is a good time to consider the vital importance of the motor truck... Here is a servant of the people which does indeed serve everyone: the farmer, the business man, the retailer, the housewife, the vacationer, the boy or girl at school.

Everything you eat, wear, or use travels all or part of the way to you by truck. Yes, trucks are as much a part of Michigan as its vast productive capacity, its beautiful scenery, its great educational facilities, its fine people.

Concrete

On Michigan's major highways...

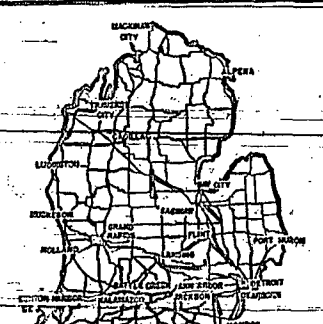

CONCRETE is safer...more dependable...more economical!

Concrete pavements are first choice for Michigan's major highways. Wherever roads must carry heavy traffic with safety and year-around dependability, concrete gets the job.

Second-class paving materials cannot match the superior performance of concrete. This modern material is engineered to carry the heaviest traffic—and with extra safety, too, thanks to concrete's skid-resistant surface and light color for better nighttime visibility. Concrete's low construction cost is added good news—especially for Michigan taxpayers. It's often less than "cheaper" substitutes...yet you get double the durability.

Longer life plus lower upkeep costs are more reasons why engineers select concrete pavements for Michigan's key trunklines...why Michigan motorists drive the best roads possible when they re-concrete.

Michigan's finest roads are concrete! Map shows where new concrete expressways will be started by 1960. Is your area included in plans for one of these major roadways which will become key travel routes in the future?
